Pentagon Brass Tells Probers of Contract

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Pentagon's two top civilian officials were before the Senate Investigations subcommittee today to describe their roles in awarding a disputed contract for a new warplane.

Both Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Deputy Secretary Roswell L. Gilpatrick declined to discuss their testimony with newsmen as they entered the closed hearing room.

Meanwhile, the Evening Star said an Air Force report alleged, and subcommittee aides denied, that Senate investigators had subjected Air Force employees to "oral abuse and pressure tactics" and "unprovoked emotional rantings."

The report, prepared to interrogate Air Force use, said the investigators' questioning was so rough that one man "collapsed from nervous exhaustion and a re-occurring ulcer" and two others suffered deep fatigue.

Jerome S. Adlerman, general counsel to the subcommittee, called the charges "ridiculous" and denied that Pentagon employees had been mistreated.

Secretary of the Air Force Eugene Zuckert said that based on reports of witnesses, "the interrogation was severe by any standards."

The subcommittee is trying to learn whether the Defense Department's civilian top command settled for an inferior and more costly TFX fighter-bomber design in awarding the contract to General Dynamics Corp. of Fort Worth, Tex., over a rival bid by the Boeing Co. of Seattle, Wash.

The $280-million contract covers the start of work on the TFX— which stands for experimental tactical fighter. Eventually 1,700 of the fighter-bombers will be built for both the Air Force and Navy for an estimated $6.5 billion.

McNamara has stated that the General Dynamics design best filled the needs of the two military services and that Boeing's design would cost $1 billion more. Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said he would demand from Gilpatrick the name of an anonymous Pentagon spokesman who, last weekend, challenged the fairness of the investigation.

McNamara had requested and received permission to testify out of turn and expand on a written defense of the contract award he had given the subcommittee last week.

Word was leaked out Wednesday that the subcommittee was checking on relationships between General Dynamics and Gilpatrick's former law firm, Cravath, Swaine

Arkansas Schools Are Accredited

CHICAGO (AP)—The North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools has announced the admission of additional institutions in its 19-state area, including five in Arkansas.

Those which lost accreditation were not announced publicly, in keeping with association policy.

Among the admissions: Southern Baptist College, Walnut Ridge, Ark.

Among the high schools admitted:

Arkansas — Townsend Park High, Pine Bluff; Watson Chapel High, near Pine Bluff; Peake High, Arkadelphia; Truman High, Trumann.

Happenings Today in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the news from Washington:

ANNIVERSARY: Pierre Salinger, White House press secretary, holds his 1,000th briefing for newsmen today.

The genial aide to President Kennedy first briefed newsmen on Jan. 21, 1961, a day after the inauguration of the chief executive.

COOLING OFF PERIOD: Despite the continuing New York and Cleveland newspaper strikes, the labor scene is cooling off, says the man who is the chief government watchdog in this field.

William E. Simkin, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, told a reporter Wednesday that his agency was working for settlements in 84 strikes at the end of last week, "the lowest weekly total we've had in some time."

Simkin said that on the average last year his service was in on about 150 strikes at a given time. Beginning in January the number began to decline.

"But we've got our fingers crossed," Simkin said. "We've got some big ones coming up."

CHERRY TREES: A capital parks official predicts Washington's famed cherry trees, delight of tourists and residents alike, will bloom between April 6 and 10.

George W. Robey, assistant chief horticulturist for the National Capital Parks Service, said Wednesday the trees should burst into their annual pink and white glory about the time of the annual Cherry Blossom Festival scheduled for April 27.

FRINGE BENEFITS: House members would get some extra benefits under proposals approved by the House Administration Committee.

Among other things the bills, approved Wednesday and scheduled for consideration next week, would:

Allow members an additional $10,506 a year for office help and raise the salary ceiling for employees from $15,349 to $16,289.

Finance two extra trips home each year, at actual cost, in addition to the 20 cents a mile members now get for one round trip per session.

Furnish members three instead of two rent-free offices in their home bailiwicks—if the space can be found in government buildings. Members would continue to get the $1,200 a year they now receive to rent such office space.

House Loans Available to Veterans

The Veterans Administration has ample funds available to make direct loans to eligible veterans who wish to purchase homes in the smaller cities, towns, or rural areas of Arkansas where such loans may be otherwise unobtainable. This is the word from C. C. Hornby, Loan Guaranty Officer for the Veterans Administration Regional Office at Little Rock.

Both World War II and Korean Conflict veterans are eligible for such loans if they have not previously used their entitlement, or if their period of eligibility has not expired. Hornby said the basic period of entitlement for loan benefits can be determined by any veteran through use of a simple formula. If he has a discharge certificate or evidence of separation from active duty, his period of entitlement will be for 10 years after discharge or release from active duty, plus one additional year for each three months of service.

Hornby suggests that any veteran who needs a loan to purchase a home for his family, and who has been unable to obtain one despite a good credit rating, write to the Loan Guaranty Division, Veterans Administration Regional Office, Federal Building, Little Rock, without delay.

Weight Bill Is Signed Into Law

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Arkansas now has a Division of Weights and Measures.

Gov. Orval E. Faubus signed a bill Wednesday setting up the state agency, which will begin regulation of weights and measures as soon as personnel can be trained. The agency will work under the state Plant Board.

Faubus signed into law Wednesday 49 measures passed during the past session of the General Assembly, including:

A House bill to relieve the minority political party of the right to appoint election judges and clerks in precincts in which it has no registered members.

A House bill to set up a division to keep marriage and divorce records in the Bureau of Vital Statistics.

A House bill to permit Little Rock and Hot Springs to establish historical districts and preserve landmarks therein.

A House bill to increase Springdale's share of the county road tax collected within its borders from 50 to 80 per cent.

A House bill creating a Capitol Grounds Commission to oversee construction and parking.

A House bill to require correspondence schools to get a certificate from the State Board of Education before advertising for business.

A Senate bill providing for appointment of a collector for improvement districts in cities with the commission form of government.

A Senate bill setting the minimum retirement pay for volunteer firemen at $30 a month.

Child Takes Stand in Rape Case

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Paul Fleschner, on trial in Pulaski Circuit Court for rape, testified Wednesday that he took a 13-year old girl who said she was assaulted for a ride, but denied attacking her.

The girl identified Fleschner as the man she said criminally assaulted her last July 4.

The girl testified she was assaulted in a cafe on Ashe Avenue and again in the defendant's car in a wooded area southwest of the city.

The state contends Fleschner was painting inside the cafe, which was closed for a holiday, when the girl came in, thinking the place was open.

Fleschner testified the girl told him when she came into the cafe that she had been attacked.

The trial was to resume at 9:30 a.m. today.

Kiwanians See a Film Strip

Paul Klipsch presented a film strip to Hope Kiwanis club yesterday which covered various tribal and historic Indian dance scenes in New Mexico and Arizona.

Floyd Fuller and Garland Smith were inducted as new members of the club, the ceremony being in charge of Jack Lowe.

Jimmy Haynes, Odis Stone and Dr. Lester Sitzes were guests.

Forest Fires in El Dorado Area

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP)—Four forest fires which burned over 61 acres south of El Dorado Wednesday were set, District Forester Doyle Hubbard said today.

They spurred his investigation of another suspected case or arson in the same area March 10. A house was set on fire and the flames spread to nearby woodlands.

Both were in the Junction City area 15 miles south of El Dorado. The Forestry Commission battled the flames for three hours Wednesday before bringing the fire under control.

The house that was set afire March 10 was destroyed. No one was injured.

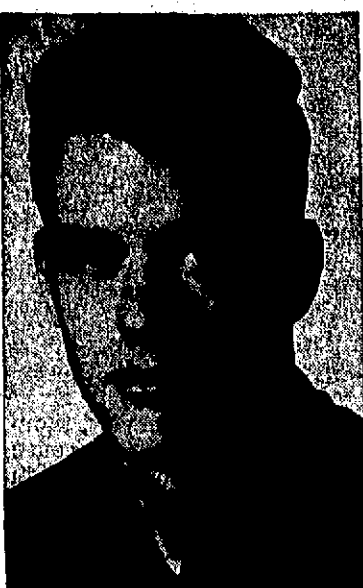

University Signs Another Texan

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—The University of Arkansas has signed halfback — fullback Eddie Woodlee of San Antonio to a college football letter of intent.

The 5-11, 194-pounder set school offensive records last year, 183 yards on total offense in his top game and 1,102 yards over the season. That's an average of almost 5.5 yards per carry.

He played for San Antonio MacArthur High School and captained the team in his senior year.

Guernsey Elects Council

David Norvell

Gene Ravencraft

Helen Self

Elaine Adams

The Guernsey student body has elected the Student Council Officers for the 1963-64 school year. David Norvell was elected president. He is an active member of the basketball and track team and also vice president of the Junior class. Gene Ravencraft was elected vice president and is a member of the basketball and track team. Elaine Adams is secretary and treasurer. She is a member of the senior girls basketball team. Helen Self was selected reporter. Helen is president of the junior class and a member of the basketball team.

MacArthur Promises Souvenirs

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur has promised to try and find some of his personal records, souvenirs and mementoes to send to the museum in MacArthur Park, Little Rock his birthplace.

MacArthur told Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., he already has given the bulk of his records and souvenirs to a memorial foundation at Norfolk, Va.

But, he told Mills, "I will endeavor at some later date to find something of this sort to contribute to the museum at Little Rock."

William H. Bowen, a Little Rock attorney, told Mills that MacArthur Park in Little Rock contains an old commissary building in which MacArthur lived.

Bowen recalled that MacArthur visited the museum some years ago and promised to give some items from his collection. But he subsequently announced plans for the gift to the Norfolk Foundation.

Little has come of the Norfolk effort, Bowen told Mills. Thus he said, MacArthur might possibly want to consider Little Rock.

Mills passed the letter along to the famous world war II general. Replying, MacArthur said:

"Little Rock, as you probably know, was my birthplace and I have always held it and the State of Arkansas in deep reverence. The preservation of the old barracks where I was born causes me the deepest sense of pleasure and appreciation. A memorial foundation at Norfolk, Va., however, has been given the bulk of my records and souvenirs. I will endeavor at some later date to find something of this sort to contribute to the museum at Little Rock."

J. D. Langston, 90, Dies Tuesday at Son's Home

John D. Langston, 90, died March 19 in Odessa, Texas at the home of a son. He was a lifelong resident of Nevada County, a retired farmer and a member of the Baptist Church.

Survivors include 4 sons: W. R. Langston and Jessie Langston, both of Emmet; Otis Langston, Prescott and Fred Langston, of Odessa; two sisters: Mrs. Betty Milner, Emmet; Annette Langston, Fresno, Calif.

The body will be returned late today to Oakcrest Funeral Home. Funeral arrangements are incomplete and will be announced by Oakcrest.

Integration Issue Cancels Army Concert

JEKYLL ISLAND, Ga. (AP)—Nine Southern cities have been dropped from a concert tour by the Army field band and soldiers chorus because there was no assurance that audiences would be integrated.

The 93 musicians, at a motel at this Georgia coastal resort, en route to Jacksonville, Fla., for a concert, learned of the change while watching a television news-cast.

The Army announced in Washington earlier that planned appearances had been canceled at Greenville, Charleston and Columbia, S.C.; Savannah, Ga.; Montgomery, Ala.; and Hall County, Ga.

"Army policy requires that the U.S. Army field band perform in public before audiences that are integrated on a desegregated basis," the announcement said.

Cardinal Dies

HAVANA (AP)—Manuel Cardinal Arceaga Betancourt, 83, Roman Catholic archbishop of Havana, died Wednesday. Cardinal Arceaga, who had been in failing health for the past year, was ordained in 1904, consecrated bishop in 1942 and was named a cardinal in 1945.

Spring Starts But Its Chilly in Most Areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The spring season started a three-month stand today but it was a little chilly in much of the eastern half of the nation and wintry weather hit areas in the Northeast.

But on the bright side, at the end of the long, cold winter at 3:20 a.m. (Eastern Standard Time) were clear skies across the major part of the nation. This was in contrast to the stormy weather pattern in many areas earlier this week.

Winter's last snowstorm which spread from the northern Midwest into the Northeast was centered in southern Ontario and was weakening slowly. The snow belt extended from Lower Michigan and Ohio eastward through much of the northern Atlantic states.

Heaviest snowfall was in southeastern New England, with up to a half foot near Boston and three inches in Boston. Heavy snow remained on the ground in northern border states from the Midwest into northern New England.

There were no other wet spots but skies were cloudy in the extreme Northwest and light rain and rain mixed with snow was indicated from central California northeastward into western Montana.

Flood waters continued to menace areas in West Virginia, southwestern Pennsylvania and Southern Illinois. Minor flooding also was reported in parts of New York state, Maryland, Ohio and Indiana.

Temperatures were lower than Wednesday morning in the eastern half of the nation. Biggest changes were in the Southeast, with readings from the 30s in Kentucky to the 40s in Georgia, Alabama and South Carolina, compared to the 60s Wednesday morning. Temperatures were in the 60s and 70s in Florida.

The freezing belt extended from the northern Plains eastward through the North Atlantic states. Still winds swept many areas.

Temperatures in the 50s or higher prevailed from the Gulf Coast westward through Texas into the Southwest.

Kiwanis Club Minstrel Plans Made

Hope Kiwanis club will present its 20th annual minstrel show in the high school auditorium the nights of April 4 and 5.

Much of the cast has already been selected and rehearsals are being held nightly under the direction of Eddie Whitman, minstrel chairman.

Throughout the years, proceeds from the show have been expended for youth service and youth activities in this community. The record shows that more than $23,000 has been spent by the club on the youth program in the past 16 years.

Another large souvenir program is being prepared for distribution in which business firms and individuals have backed the Kiwanians with financial support.

Will Reduce Indebtedness

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Arkansas' bonded indebtedness will be reduced to $54,160,000 next week when checks are put in the mail.

Frank Storey, secretary of the state Board of Finance, said Wednesday checks to clear $943,530 in interest and $5,228,000 in principal—a total of $6,171,530—will be mailed.

Payments on principal and interest on the 1941 highway refunding bond issue, the only general indebtedness of the state, are made each April 1. Payments on interest only are made each Oct. 1.

The bond issue originally totaled $136,331,000. It is scheduled to be paid in full on April 1, 1972.

France Is Crippled by Strikes

PARIS (AP)—Strike-plagued France today limped through a rail walkout that snarled traffic throughout the nation. Some mailmen and steel workers also struck.

Most Paris suburban commuters were forced to use buses or private cars to get to work. The strike was called for different hours on various lines, and in the confusion almost all commuters shunned the trains.

Freight traffic was disrupted. Long-distance passenger trains were running, but often were subject to long delays.

A strike among mailmen was spotty. In some places, part of the mail was delivered and the rest left in the post office. Some districts got no mail.

Steel workers went on strike in eastern France and planned a number of mass meetings. In some plants about 80 per cent of the workers followed the strike order, but in other plants only about half the crews stayed off the job.

Electricity and gas workers struck for four hours Wednesday and plan a similar walkout Friday.

The 170,000 coal miners maintained a solid strike front as their walkout neared the end of the second week.

A government commission is studying the gap between wages in nationalized and private industries—the main issue of the strikes.

The workers also are asking a reduction in the work week to 40 hours without loss of pay. The present work week ranges from 44 to 48 hours.

Alpine Crash Probes Has Started

CUNEO, Italy (AP)—The state attorney in Cuneo opened a formal inquiry today to determine if sabotage caused the Alpine crash of King Saud's jet en route from Geneva to Nice.

A spokesman said one object of the inquiry was to check a report that there might have been a bomb aboard the plane, which crashed off course in fog and clouds early Wednesday. All 18 persons aboard were killed. They included nine members of the Saudi Arabian king's household and four American crewmen.

The bomb report was published in an Italian paper, which quoted a Radio Mecca broadcast of a message purportedly sent by the king from Nice.

In Nice, however, the king's chief of protocol denied that Saud had made such a charge.

The plane had taken Saud and most of his party to Nice on Tuesday. It returned to Geneva for more members of the royal party and much of the party's baggage, and was on the way back to Nice when it crashed.

Officials at the Geneva airport said they had no reason to suspect sabotage. They said the plane had been heavily guarded while at Geneva.

Mrs. J. L. Wilson Succumbs at the Age of 85

Mrs. John L. Wilson Sr., aged 85, a lifelong resident of Hempstead County, died last night in a local hospital. She was a member of the Christian Church.

Survivors include a son, Judge John L. Wilson Jr., of Hope, two brothers, Frank Rider of Hope and L. D. Rider of Patmos.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Friday at Herndon-Cornelius Chapel with burial in New Hope Cemetery.

Volcano Erupts in Indonesia, 400 Are Killed

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Bali island's rampaging Agung volcano has killed at least 400 persons, a spokesman for the Indonesian civil defense organization said today.

The spokesman said there was an increasing threat of more violent eruptions from the 10,300-foot volcano in northeast Bali.

President Sukarno had declared the tourist-mecca island a disaster zone.

It was not clear immediately whether the increased death toll was due to new eruptions. Previously, officials had put the death toll at 150 or more.

A Red Cross source said latest reports listed 125 known injured. In view of the jump in the death toll, the number of injured also was expected to rise sharply.

The volcano erupted briefly Feb. 19, killing 17 persons, then lapsed into a lull. Last Sunday it began spewing out rock and lava.

The civil defense spokesman said some 250,000 persons are being evacuated from an area 20 miles around the volcano, which the Balinese consider the center of the universe.

Tons of lava and rock have spread death and destruction over a wide area. Thick clouds of volcanic ash virtually blacked out the sun over parts of Bali and darkened the sky over nearby populous east Java.

The spokesman said lava flows have isolated several areas to the east and south of Agung. However, the areas are accessible from the sea and boats are being rushed from nearby islands to aid victims and evacuate threatened areas.

Besakih, the largest and most sacred of Bali's temples, is on the slope of Agung, but so far it is reported undamaged. The temple is the focal point of a 100-year ceremony which was under way when Agung erupted.

During the ceremony held once each century, bones of the dead are burned to cleanse the island and rid it of spirits.

A large number of tourists are on Bali for the ceremony. However, there have been no reports of any foreigners among the casualties. Most of the tourists are staying at Denpasar, the capital of Bali, about 40 miles southwest of Agung.

The island is just off the east coast of Java, Indonesia's most populous island.

Thinks U.S. Should Grab Initiative

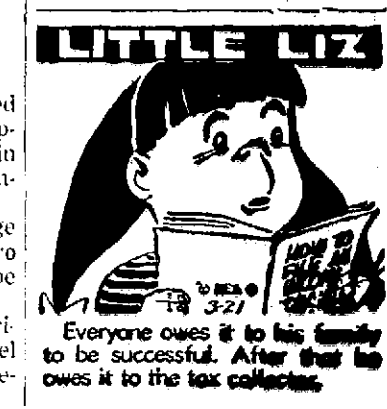

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former German Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano is understood to have told two congressional committees that the time is ripe for the United States to grab the initiative from the Soviet Union on all issues—including Berlin.

He also told them that Washington's concern over the recently concluded Franco-German treaty is unfounded and that French President Charles de Gaulle has raised some points which should not be dismissed easily, even though he was wrong in vetoing membership for Great Britain in the European Common Market.

Von Brentano, majority leader of the German Bundestag and one of the most influential political figures in Bonn, outlined his views in meetings Wednesday with the House Foreign Affairs Committee and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

He also had a talk with former Secretary of State Dean Acheson, whose outspoken speeches sharply criticizing Britain and De Gaulle's policy have baffled Europe.

Acheson, sources close to Brentano said, was one of those who had misgivings about the De Gaulle-Adenauer pact which he considered an attempt by France and Germany to dominate Europe and exclude Great Britain and the United States from European affairs.

THE DARK FLOWER OF PASSION

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: A year-ago my middle-aged husband told me he loved another woman. I cried and he tried to be nice, said he was sorry but didn't promise to give her up.

I have worried until I am sick within my soul. God only knows how I pray for this madness of his to end.

How can you make a man need you as he needs her? It's got so he recoils from my very touch. I have tried to be an angel but it does not work.

When this affair first started, the woman was his drinking companion — did the town with him, stayed up till all hours. Now he's quit drinking but still he is out late night after night.

He picks the woman up at work, drives her home, comes home for a hasty dinner and leaves. I fluctuate between wild fury and hopeless despair. I have told him in a rage to get out and stay out, then got down on my knees imploring him to love me. He always comes back the same night but not to our bed. What can I do? —Heart-sick.

Dear Heart-sick: Your husband is at the dangerous age. As his appeal wanes with the years, his susceptibility to flattery increases. The other woman undoubtedly bolstered his ego; otherwise he wouldn't continue this illicit relationship. To get him back you'll have to go her one better. Avoid making an issue of his philandering for that will drive him straight into her arms, perhaps forever.

Difficult though the situation is, it doesn't seem reasonable to divorce at this late date provided you can keep the marriage going. To do so, there must be a complete change in your attitude. In a sense, it will be like starting a new life.

Begin with yourself; change your personal appearance. If needed, slim down. Go to the best hairdresser in town for a restyling. Clear all the old, serviceable, make-do-another-year clothes out of your wardrobe. Get yourself a complete new spring ensemble.

And send your husband the bills!

Go places. Be interested and interesting. Spruce up the house, change the furniture about. Do the subtle, kind things for your husband that get under a man's skin. Defer to his wishes, while shaping them as only a woman can, in a way that will help him.

Care about what he wears and how he looks. Play up to his hobbies. Bring home a book occasionally which would appeal to him. Invite his friends to the house. Concentrate on making the home attractive, cheerful and gay.

Keep fresh flowers in the rooms. Study the women's sections of newspapers and magazines for original interior decoration ideas that will be conversation pieces. In other words, stage a production of yourself and the house that will prove to your husband the greener pastures he seeks are right in his own home.

Dear Helen: I am happily married. Love my home and family and think life is wonderful so I come seeking advice of a different sort than that which you usually give.

My one pleasure outside the home is sketching fashion designs. No matter where I go or what I do, style ideas are forever popping into my head. My husband has encouraged me to write you for advice, even though this is a bit out of your line.

Where could I market my sketches? Should I first take a course in fashion designing? If so, is there such a thing as a correspondence course along these lines? Must I familiarize myself with seasonal fabrics and colors? —Hopeful

Dear Hopeful: Take a course in fashion designing first. Ask your Board of Education extension offices of universities and local YWCAs about courses.

When ready to sell your sketches, make the rounds of New York's Seventh Avenue wholesale dress and suit houses yourself. To submit designs by mail is to run the risk of having them copied, if they're any good.

Dear Helen: Sonny, that boy who thinks a girl shouldn't date nor wear make-up till she's 17, talks like an old fogey. I am 16, have been dating since I was 14 and having a lot of fun. I also wear a touch of make-up and lipstick and the boys don't mind. If a girl waits till 17 before dating, she won't know how to act when a boy asks her out. Give her a chance to practice up. —No Hard Feelings

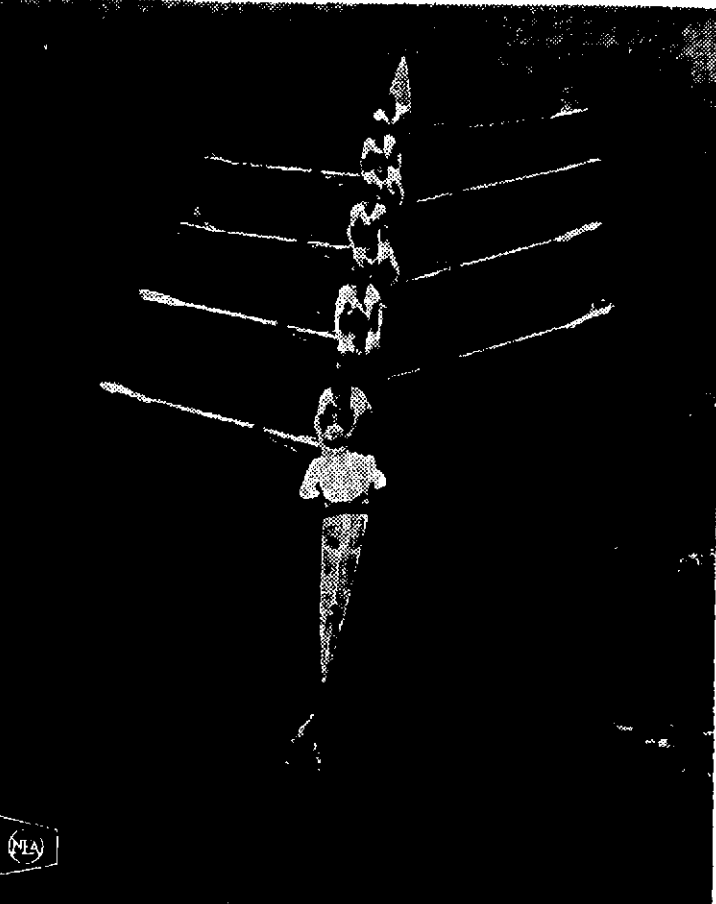

Dear No Hard Feelings: Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my letter, "Teenage Code."

Have you a problem? Perhaps Helen Worden Erskine can help you. Write her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Russia Seems to Be Stuck With Cuba

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — So far the Russians are ahead on Cuba, now their satellite in this hemisphere. But they look stuck with it, even if they wanted out.

The United States seems baffled on how to rid the island of them, Fidel Castro and communism in general. Even excited congressional cries to do something, like a blockade, have melted away.

President Kennedy, pointing out a blockade might mean war with Russia, has promised to tighten antisubversion rings around Cuba. What that means isn't clear.

Neither he nor the six Central American presidents who met with him this week in Costa Rica suggested direct action. But it's hard to see what else will work so long as Russia keeps Castro afloat with supplies and protection.

The State Department meanwhile, strongly opposed hit-and-run raids on the island by Cuban refugees. Two refugee groups reportedly raided over the weekend and killed or wounded some Russians.

The mess will get worse if the forays continue and the Russians pursue the raiders with ships and planes. At the same time, without such tangible evidence of support, anti-Castroites in Cuba may give up.

The presence of 15,000 or so Russian troops in Cuba is frustrating in more ways than one this country's historic policy of keeping foreign powers out of the hemisphere:

1. So long as Castro is boss and wants them, this country can't argue they have forced their way in.

2. Since U.S. officials have said the Russian troops are not a direct threat, this country can't use self-protection, to excuse direct action.

3. Direct action, since Russian troops would be involved or endangered, would head straight for war with Russia.

4. Too much pious American outrage at the Russians' presence would be unconvincing. American troops are involved in fighting Communists in Viet Nam.

So, while Premier Khrushchev was embarrassed when Kennedy forced him to remove his Cuban missiles, he has embarrassed Kennedy with his troops.

Since neither Kennedy nor anyone else has suggested a quick solution, the American embarrassment should go on indefinitely.

It's additionally galling to now the Russian troops are life insurance for Castro in case the Cuban people wanted to throw him out.

There's another side to the coin: Castro, since he must depend on Russian economic and military protection for survival, has to be subservient to Russian wishes.

This makes him a puppet. Puppets can be discarded. The Russians, no dopes, must have several other Cuban Communists ready to replace Castro if he balks.

At the same time Cuba, under the Russian wing, is now a training ground for Communists from other Latin-American countries.

Once they graduate they can return home to display their scholarship, with guns, money, propaganda and political and military organization.

Keeping them from returning home seems to be the antisubversion ring Kennedy is talking of tightening.

If by this time the Russians are wishing they weren't so deeply involved in a place so far from Russia as Cuba, there seems little they can do.

They are under pressure not to desert Castro. The Red Chinese already have branded the Russians as chicken Communists.

For the Russians to let Castro

& Moore of New York.

Maurice T. Moore, a partner in the firm, said in New York the firm has done legal work for both General Dynamics and Boeing, but not in connection with defense contracts. He said Gilpatric participated in some of that work, but not since leaving it in 1961 to enter government service.

McNamara issued a statement denying that Gilpatric had any conflict of interest. "His integrity and devotion to public service are unassailable," the secretary said. And he repeated that he takes full responsibility for the contract award.

McClellan told a news conference Gilpatric would be free to make a statement about the law firm if he chose, but that this was not the purpose in calling him. firm if he chose, but that this was not the purpose in calling him.

symbolic importance.

The end of communism in Cuba would be a disheartening blow to communism and Communists everywhere in Latin America.

Perhaps the best thing so far to come out of the fear of the spread of communism from Cuba is the realization by American and Latin-American politicians that more Latin-American economic and social progress is needed faster.

Mrs. America Contestants

NEW YORK (AP) — Three Arkansas women were named state finalists today in the 1963 Mrs. America pageant.

They are Mrs. T. J. Bryant of Wynne, Mrs. Johnson S. Mattingly Jr. of Conway and Mrs. Jimmie O. Spotts of West Memphis.

They will compete for the state title and the winner will compete in the national contest at Miami. The state finalist will be selected March 30 by a group of home economists and members of the General Federation of Women's Club's meeting in Miami Beach.

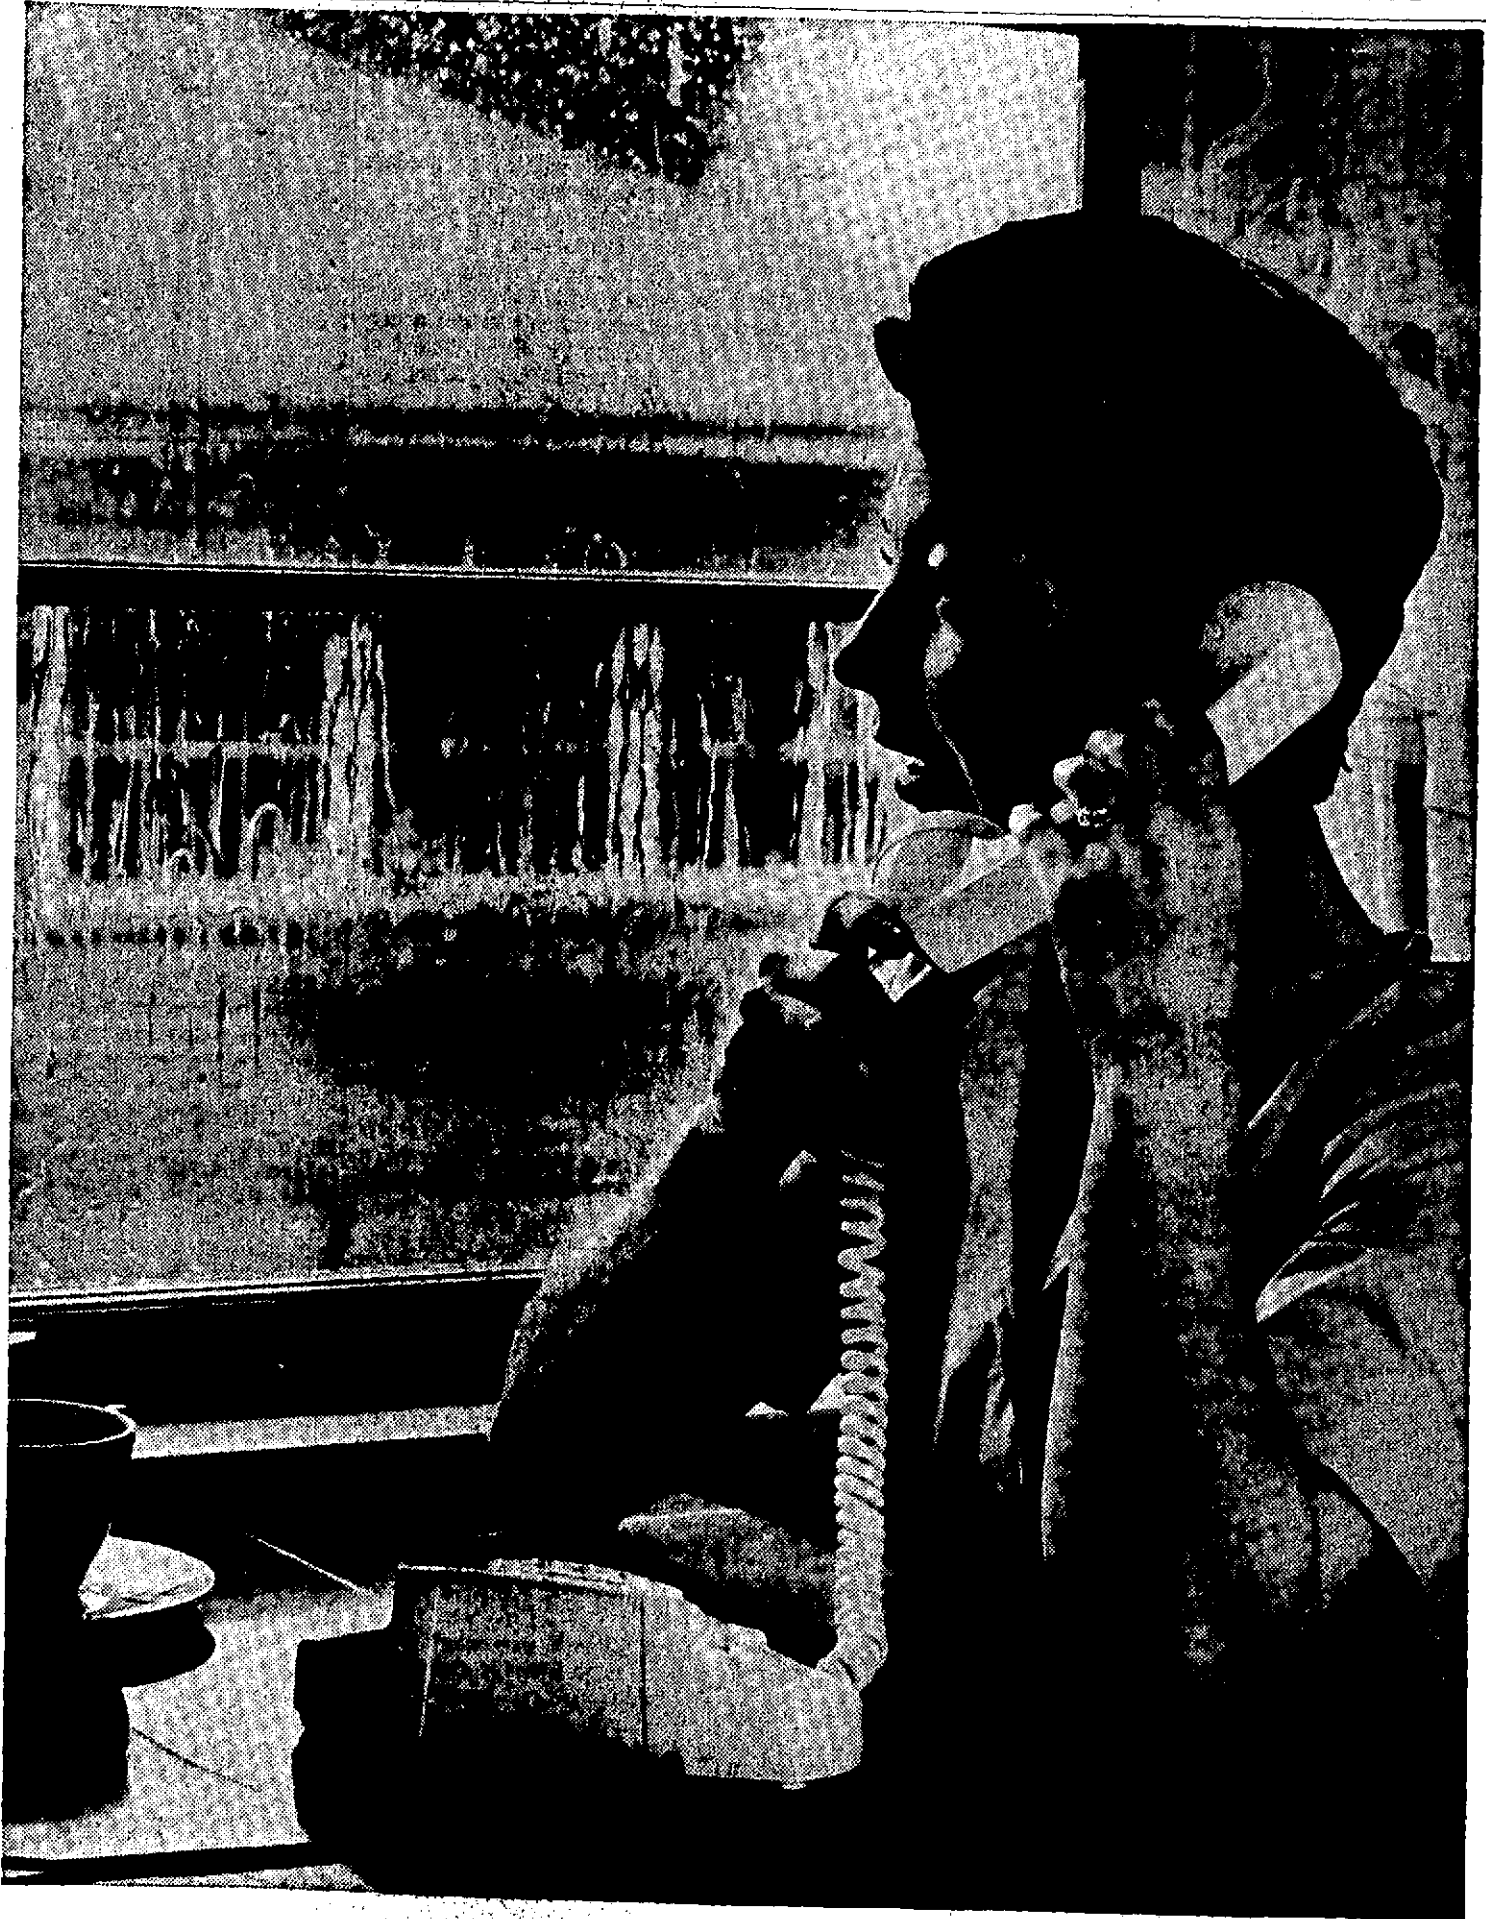

Mrs. Bryant, 33, is the mother of three children and wife of an insurance representative. Mrs. Mattingly is a mother of three and wife of a manufacturer. Mrs. Spotts has three children and her husband operates a drug store.

Russia Ready for Additional Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Soviet Union has told the United States that it will be ready to resume exploratory talks on RLIN in the near future.

Diplomatic sources, in reporting this today, said that V. S. Semenov, Soviet deputy foreign minister, called in John M. McSweeney, minister counselor of the U.S. Embassy in Moscow, and told him the Soviet Union would like to start the bilateral talks about the future of Berlin again.

The State Department immediately arranged a meeting of the four interested Allied powers to discuss the latest Soviet move.

No matter how wretched the weather, you can keep right on using your telephone.

Some years ago, bad weather might have affected your telephone service.

Today, things are different.

Most telephone cables are now filled with pressurized dry air. If a cable springs a leak, the force of the escaping dry air holds out moisture and keeps phones working. An alarm automatically tells repairmen the location of the break. Usually, the trouble is fixed and you never know anything was wrong.

So go ahead and use your phone when the sky opens up and the rain comes down. Pressurizing telephone cables to give you stormproof dependability is another improvement made with you in mind. Our never-ending goal is to improve your telephone service and make it more valuable to you.

Skies Are Clear Over Arkansas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The first day of spring came briskly into Arkansas as a ridge of high pressure extending from Texas to Canada pushed moderate temperatures and fair skies ahead of it.

Fair weather and mild temperatures were expected to continue in the state tonight with a warming trend beginning Friday afternoon.

A low clouds will drift into the state on Saturday as mild temperatures continue, the Weather Bureau predicted.

Low temperatures should range from 35 to 40 in the southern portion of the state and from 30 to 35 in the northern portion.

Frost was expected in most of the state tonight with the exception of the extreme southern portion.

Overnight lows around the state last night ranged from 31 at Harrison and 32 at Fort Smith to 41 at Little Rock, 43 at Pine Bluff and 45 at Texarkana.

Bug Bite Case

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — James T. Gallick, 61, principal figure in the "bug bite" case that resulted in a $625,000 judgment which was upheld by the U.S. Supreme court, died Wednesday. Gallick, a former freight yard conductor for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, had claimed that an unidentified insect that bit him while he was working for the railroad in 1954 spread infection through his entire system and was responsible for amputation of both his legs.

THE NATO LEGION

• Some 200 Polaris missiles.

• Missiles would be mounted on 25 or more surface vessels—no more than 8 to a ship.

• Crews would become members of a "NATO Legion," with distinctive uniforms and a flag.

• Any participating nation would have the right to veto a firing order.

As proposed, European members of the force would pay more than half the costs of the fleet.

Magnolia Has to Hold Election

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The city of Magnolia will have to elect all eight of its aldermen this year because it changed its ward map. A city attorney sent the attorney general a map of new ward boundaries, the attorney general's office ruled today.

Rodney T. Chambers, Magnolia general a map showing new wards and details of the boundary changes and asked if an election of all eight aldermen was necessary.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Jerry L. Patterson advised him that all eight would have to be elected, two to each ward, and the aldermen from each ward should cast lots when the council is organized to determine which will serve a two-year term and which a one-year term.

Chambers said Magnolia's ward boundaries were changed to place in each ward a more equal number of qualified electors.

Russia Has Launched Satellite

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union launched an unmanned satellite today.

The satellite was named Cosmos 13, the Soviet news agency Tass announced.

The Soviets began launching the Cosmos series a year ago and said they were measuring radiation and other phenomena. Cosmos 12 was launched Dec. 22.

Tass said Cosmos 13 had been placed in orbit with an initial time to circle the earth of 89.77 minutes. The equipment installed on board the satellite is functioning smoothly, Tass said.

Splinter Just Goes Through

MANKATO, Minn. (AP)—Steve Brown, 19, a freshman at Mankato State College, had stomach cramps for six weeks after a toboggan accident, but not until last weekend did he learn the cause.

He had been to the doctor several times without relief. Last weekend, he went again.

The doctor probed a wound in his bottomside and found a bit of wood. He pulled, and pulled some

Chicago Port Is a City in Itself

By EDWARD S. KITCH

CHICAGO (AP)—The world's busiest airport, Chicago's O'Hare International, is an immense jet age layout that has become almost a city in itself.

When President Kennedy attends dedication ceremonies Saturday, he will find a sprawling 7,200-acre installation that serves 13½ million passengers a year and handles nearly a flight a minute on the average. Located 21 miles northwest of downtown Chicago, the airport has parking facilities for 5,700 cars and can feed 1,500 persons at a time in its biggest restaurant.

It represents a $200-million investment.

O'Hare has become an air crossroads of the world. Nonstop service is provided to many foreign cities. Even foreign airlines and 14 domestic airlines use its facilities.

With more than 40,000 flights last year, O'Hare surpassed New York's Idlewild Airport traffic of 11,610,390 passengers and 290,133 flights.

The present development — two new terminal buildings and a $3-million glass-steel circular restaurant featuring a seven-continent dining room—was financed by $149 million worth of revenue bonds.

The terminal buildings, each 750 feet long and 110 feet wide, were built at a cost of $35 million. They are connected to six 800-foot concourses with 58 plane gates.

The arm-like concourses have highly mobile enclosed ramps called jetties which reach out to airliners and telescope away when not needed.

O'Hare was named for Edward H. (Butch) O'Hare, a World War I hero.

Named by President Roosevelt one of the greatest combat fliers in aviation history, O'Hare shot down five Japanese bombers and damaged a sixth in single-handed action over the Pacific, Feb. 20, 1942, saving his carrier. He received the Medal of Honor from President Roosevelt. O'Hare disappeared in night action over the Pacific Dec. 10, 1943.

Liberties Group Plans to File Suit

HOUSTON (AP)—The Greater Houston chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union plans to file with the Supreme Court a friend of the court brief in behalf of Leslie Douglas Ashley.

Jim Hippard, chairman, said the chapter will ask the court to resolve a serious question involving Ashley's rights to due process of law.

The state Board of Pardons and Paroles refused Tuesday to commute the death sentences of Ashley and his girl friend, Carolyn Lima, to life imprisonment.

They were convicted last year for the torch murder of Fred Tones, a Houston real estate man. Ashley is a native of Hot Springs, Ark.

Defense attorneys have said they probably will file Supreme Court Appeals in Washington Thursday.

"We are involving ourselves only with the due process question in Ashley's case. A psychiatrist testified recently he told Dist. Atty. Frank Briscoe before Ashley's trial that Ashley was insane and mentally incompetent to stand trial."

"Briscoe apparently felt compelled not to come forward with such testimony. We think he should have come forward."

"Briscoe has many legal authorities behind him and we are not challenging his good faith. But we feel there is a serious question here and that the court should resolve it."

Ashley and Miss Lima are scheduled to die in the electric chair at state prison headquarters in Huntsville March 30. She would be the first woman to be electrocuted at the prison.

Testimony In Bankrupt Grain Firm

MEMPHIS (AP)—The president of a bankrupt grain firm testified Wednesday that firm consultant L. V. Butler told him he planned to operate under his wife's name "because she had an income tax loss carry-over which he wanted to take advantage of."

Thomas E. Thompson said he understood the speculation would help Federal Grain Co., of Morely, Mo., but that Butler did not explain how his wife's carry-over could be transferred to the company's benefit.

Thompson was answering to direct questions from Federal Judge Robert W. Taylor.

James F. Reeves, attorney for company receiver John D. Hux of Sikeston, Mo., produced a series of checks indicating the round about method used in transferring money from the company to Mrs. Butler.

Thompson, who said "Butler 'ran the show' although merely a consultant, testified Mrs. Butler's name was carried on the margin account in the company books until May 1960. At that time Leonard Bernes of Atlanta, principal stockholder of the now defunct firm, questioned the company's speculative transactions.

Mrs. Butler is being sued in federal court for $93,000 by the receiver, John D. Hux. He claims she received the money from the company illegally. He sues charges Butler used the money for soybean speculation.

Defense Attorney Lucius Burch hopes to prove that Mrs. Butler received nothing by the transactions carried out under her name, and that all speculation was done with the full knowledge of Federal Grain's officers.

Earlier Wednesday, Burch conceded that the grain firm for which Butler served as a $1,000-month consultant was insolvent when formed.

Butler, who has been in legal difficulties since 1956, waited outside the courtroom all day. He is expected to testify in his wife's defense later. Both he and Thompson are under indictment in St. Louis in connection with the company's operations.

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation for the flowers, food, cards and all the acts of kindness shown during the loss of our loved one.

Mr. Churchill Is Master of His Language

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sir Winston Churchill handled the English language like a careful cabinet-maker. He turned it out in all shapes and sizes. But while it was always polished it was seldom waxed.

He gave the language of contempt the sound of sweeping out an alley. He spoke of Karl Marx "in his hovel" and of Hitler as that "squalid caucus boss and butcher."

In his bad moments he used words with the insensitivity of a headshrinker to diminish an opponent, as he did when he called Ramsay MacDonald a "boneless wonder." MacDonald never forgave him.

And there was wit, too. There is the story that when Parliament got a new member named Bosom and Churchill heard about it he said: "What an extraordinary name. Neither one thing nor the other."

But it was in Britain's most desolate time that he bought his place in history with the weapons of language and his indestructible will.

He gave his countrymen a sense of escaping from their own Calvary through a resurrection from agony when he spoke of lifting Hitler's curse from the "hows of mankind" and promised "all will come right" in the end.

He served a tough apprenticeship, self-imposed, in mastering English. He couldn't let it alone. It was a good enterprise. In the end it made him a rich man and one of the great figures of history.

When Churchill went into the cavalry in 1885—he had been too miserable in everything but English to get into a university—he had no clear philosophy, little knowledge of history and probably few ideas he hadn't inherited. Yet, somehow, he developed a style. Everything he has written has had not only a sense of life but the sound of it.

While he was in the army he was also correspondent for London newspapers and, after covering British fighting in India, Egypt and South Africa, he wrote three books about them and all were successes before he was 30.

He was better known to the British public for his dispatches on battles than he was for his soldiering. Then he became so famous, by escaping from the Boers, that he went home in 1900 and got elected to Parliament.

He was 26 then. He's 88 now. With the exception of two years, when he was defeated, Churchill has been in Parliament since 1900. He didn't get married until he was 34. The reason seems to be he didn't have time.

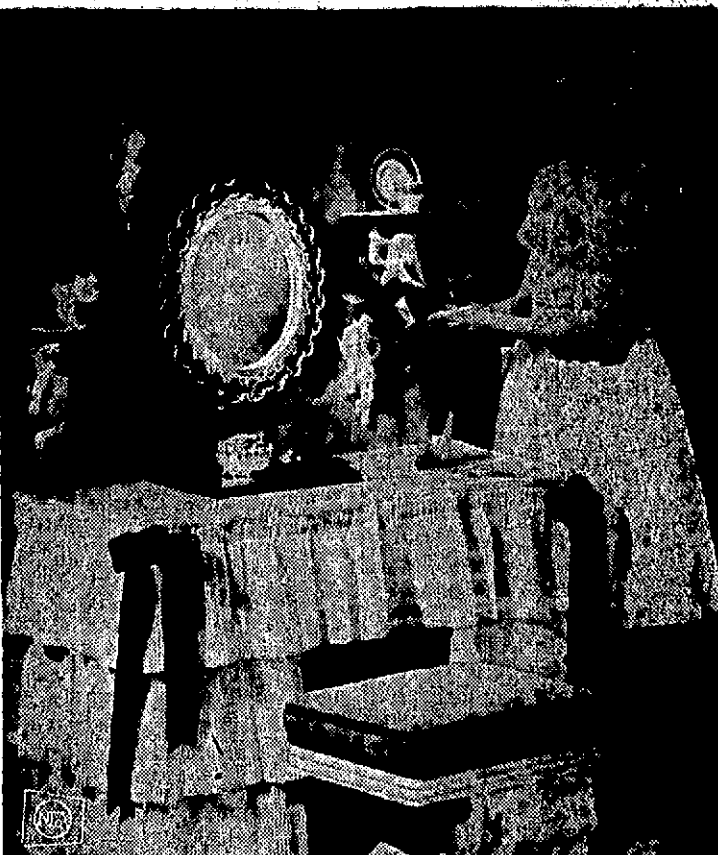

He worked for a career. When he was invited to a friend's house in the country for a weekend, he took books and papers with him and spent the weekend memorizing speeches. In the beginning he had to memorize them.

Words have failed him perhaps only twice in his lifetime. The first was when, deciding not to memorize any more but talk from notes, he lost the notes.

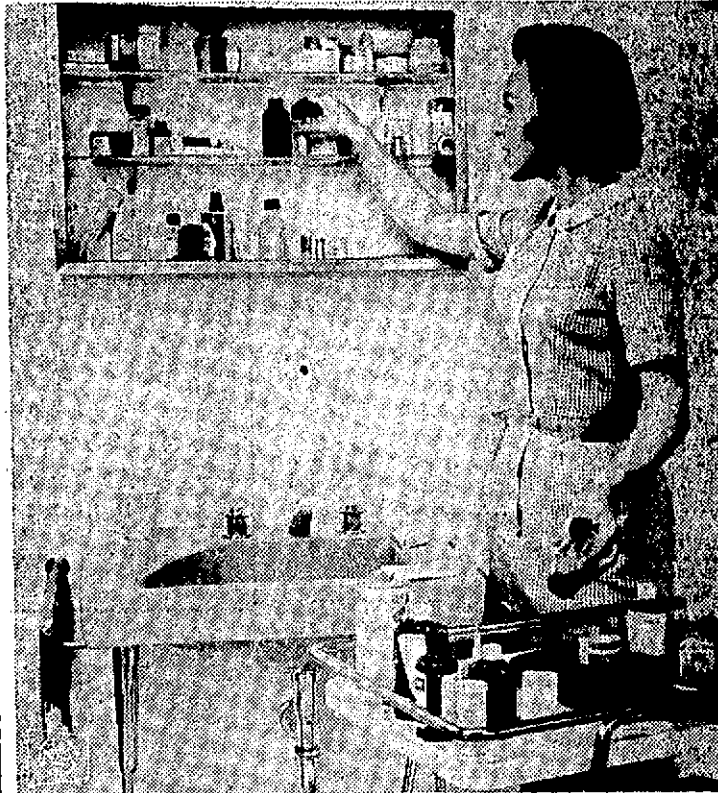

The second was in 1942 in the House of Commons when, starting to speak about Pierre Laval, the despised French collaborator of Hitler, Churchill said: "I am afraid I have exhausted the possibilities of the English language."

Middle Aged Loose Tooth Is Ordeal

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—One of life's little ordeals is to have a loose tooth in middle age.

"Get your fingers out of your mouth," your wife says one morning at breakfast, reaching across the table to slap at your hand. "Scuse, Ughgotta loose tooth," you mumble.

"Either there is an echo in this room," says your wife, "or I understand you to say you have a loose tooth, which is more or less impossible."

"Ughgotta loose tooth!" "The old lady on the floor below us has had three husbands, and outlived them all," remarks the wife. "One of them lasted until 85. She told me all about her husbands, and none of them ever had a loose tooth."

"Oh, well, you would!" replies the wife crossly. Then she goes to the desk, thumbs through the family insurance folder and announces forlornly, "Just as I thought—we're not covered. Why does this have to happen to me?"

As you step into the bus you tell the driver: "Ughgotta loose tooth."

"Move to the back of the bus, please," he replied. It is hard to impress a bus driver. It is also hard to impress the boss.

"Ughgotta loose tooth," you tell him.

"I have a lame back," he answers, "but the company still has to make a profit to stay in business."

"Ughgotta loose tooth."

"Well, go see your dentist—I'm not the chaplain," the boss says impatiently. "But hurry back, or you'll be too late for the coffee break."

It turns out your dentist deals only with situations involving firm teeth or no teeth. He sends you to a specialist.

They strap you in a chair. The specialist enters, sticks a monkey wrench into your mouth, clamps it, and looks out the window. You look out the window, too, to see what he is looking at, and then he gives a quick jerk on the wrench, and your loose tooth is out.

"Thammps," you tell him. He sends you back to your own dentist, who examines you and says, "Now you'll need a new bridge. It'll take about three weeks and I estimate the job at $365—give or take $100."

You hurry back to the office. Sure enough, you've missed the coffee break, but you at least have the pleasure of spending the rest of the day opening your mouth and showing where the loose tooth was.

Your wife is very kind to you when you get home and explain in gap-mouthed English the ordeal of your day. When you awaken the next morning, you find your wife has thoughtfully put a shiny two-bit piece under your pillow.

"That's for lunch—I'd suggest soup," she says. "You've been a good boy."

"Thammps."

There's nothing quite like a loose tooth to teach one that middle age has its own rewards.

Girl Hit, Killed by Automobile

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONOKE, Ark. (AP) — A 10-year-old girl on her way home from school to her birthday party was struck by a car and killed Tuesday. State Trooper Bill Brashears said Judy Ann Travis was struck as she stepped off a school bus and attempted to cross Highway 70 about two miles east of Lonoke in front of her home. Her parents Mr. and Mrs. Duane Travis, had a birthday cake waiting for her. Brashears said Lt. Bonnie D. Hines, 25, of Amarillo, Tex., driver of the car, was charged with involuntary manslaughter and passing a school bus unlawfully. Brashears said Hines was placed under $5,000 bond.

Group Plans to Halt Spread of Communism

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—What the seven presidents did at Costa Rica was so obvious it had been predicted. They issued a declaration of intention to stop the spread of communism in this hemisphere.

What is less obvious is what they may have agreed on privately, if anything. But even the success of what they publicly announced depends on how thoroughly they carry it out.

After two days of talks President Kennedy—and the presidents of Costa Rica, Nicaragua, Honduras, El Salvador, Guatemala and Panama—said they agreed:

1. To make a real-effort at social and economic progress in Latin America. This, if really pursued, would deprive communism of some of its argument it can do more for the Latin-American people faster.

2. To halt the flow of Communist agents, arms and propaganda between Cuba and the Central American countries.

The United States, according to the declaration, will give special help in this with additional air and sea surveillance and interception within territorial waters.

But while the presidents were meeting the State Department in Washington announced strong U.S. opposition to hit and run raids on Cuba by refugees.

Lincoln White, State Department press officer, said this country "has stated repeatedly that such raids do not weaken the grip of the Fidel Castro regime in Cuba. Indeed, they may strengthen it."

If the United States—which backed the disastrous Bay of Pigs invasion in 1961—intends to be firm against hit and run raids it may depress the morale of anti-Castroites inside Cuba.

The reason for White's statement seems to be not concern for the Castroites in Cuba but for the Russians there. If they get hit by raiders it will mess up American-Russian relations even more.

The Russians would then do the obvious: claim the raiders came from U. S. bases and had American instigation and support.

In Miami this week anti-Castro Cuban refugees sources said two refugee groups shelled a Soviet military camp and a Soviet ship in Cuba.

The seven presidents' declaration raised no threat of armed intervention by any of their countries against Castro but expressed their conviction Cuba would soon be free of him.

How they're going to do this without direct action against him, since he is getting Russian help, backed by perhaps 15,000 Russian troops in Cuba, is the No. 1 mystery of the Costa Rican conference.

So, as far as the public is concerned, it's no more enlightened on what direct steps can be taken against Castro than it was before the meeting.

The declaration did indicate earnestness on the part of the Central American presidents to push their social and economic programs through more cooperation and integration.

Five of the six Central American countries—Panama is the exception but now says it wants to move closer—have already had for two years a common market arrangement of their own.

Kennedy promised them a loan quickly and more help later when they get their plans further along.

The rural representatives, still outnumbering those from the cities, balked at a reapportionment that would diminish their ranks or influence. When the city people's appeals for fairness were frustrated, they turned to the Supreme Court.

For years the court refused to intervene. It changed its mind last March. At that time a survey by the National Municipal League showed over-representation of rural areas existed in all but six states.

A year ago the court ruled that if state legislatures didn't reapportion themselves to provide fair representation in accordance with the distribution of population, federal courts could move in to force them to.

This decision started a flood of legal fights. The court has still not laid down any fixed guidelines for reapportioning legislative seats. But some states have already done the job themselves.

What the court did Monday was "one voter, one vote" in statewide elections or U.S. sena-

Business May Be a Little Better Off

By SAM DAWSON

A Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — With spring at the threshold, many businessmen are cautiously deciding they may be better off than they were admitting.

They won't go so far as to say for, governor, lieutenant governor, and judges with statewide responsibilities.

The case involved Georgia but doubtless will apply to Maryland, the early two states with a county-unit plan.

In Georgia the eight counties with the most population were given six units. This ranged down to 121 counties with only two units each. A candidate getting the largest number of votes in a county got all its units.

The state has a total of 410 units. The man getting a majority of them wins the election. But—a man in a statewide election could get a majority of the votes in the whole state but still lose the election.

For instance: a man might carry Atlanta with a majority of 100,000 votes but get only six units. These would be nullified if his opponent got a majority in three far less populated counties because he would have six units, too.

ECONOMICAL and good to eat, turkey has become a popular Easter dinner choice. Try it with fruit bread stuffing.

that business shouldn't be a lot better than it is. And they have problems and worries by the bushel. They often do.

But neither today's conditions or tomorrow's prospects are as dire as many were saying a little while ago.

Federal slide-rule artists, after a new look at the employment figures, find some improvements scattered amidst the bad news they released earlier this month.

The steel industry is enjoying a mild sort of boom. Auto makers can reel off both figures and spring could work its minor miracle among the winter weary and send auto sales still higher. Unemployment is the most chronic pain. But even it may be eased somewhat by spring's opening up of more outdoor jobs.

Labor strife—present and potential—is a particularly large cloud this year. But whether it blows away or becomes a major thunderstorm is yet to be seen.

Corporate earnings reports mostly are on the cheerful side. Employment figures take on a cheerier hue as the Labor Department looks the latest figures over and finds they weren't as bad as could be expected in the final weeks of winter. This is known as adjusting them seasonally.

On this basis, factory jobs increased in February for the first time in seven months. While the factory work week actually dropped a bit, it wasn't as much as usual for the time of year. So, seasonally adjusted, it is recorded as lengthening after two months of shrinkage.

All of this is designed to take some of the bitter edge off the increase of the rate of unemployment to 6.1 per cent of the total labor force, the highest percentage in 15 months.

Steel production's seven straight weeks of expansion puts it 19 per cent higher than early February. Some of the gains come from stock building as a hedge against the possibility of a strike late in the summer. Some is credited to rebuilding of stocks allowed to dwindle during the steel industry's private little recession.

But a good part of the new orders are reported to be from customers who need the metal for use now and in the spring as their own business expands. Two of steel's big customers—autos and construction—have been doing fine and see no letup soon.

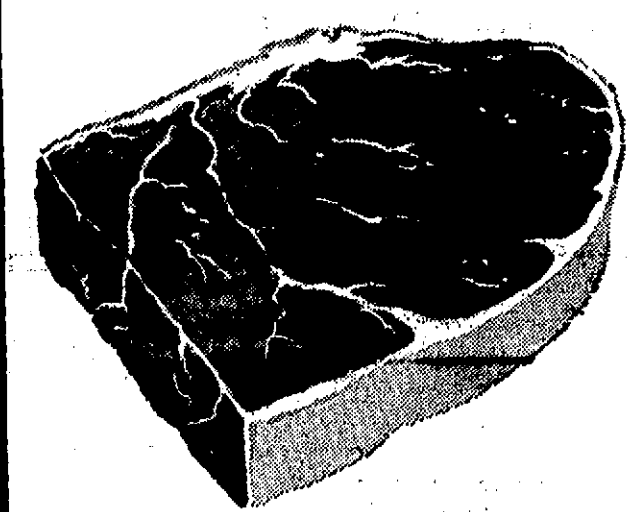

Those with things to sell to consumers—from clothes to household appliances, from autos to new homes—are counting upon good spring business. There are regional differences, whether caused by the weather or unemployment. But on the whole, it looks like a good spring after a nervous winter.

Knowledge Is Not Always Yours to Sell

By DARDEN CHAMBLISS

AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—What's in a man's head can belong to someone else.

His knowledge, courts have held, is not necessarily his to sell.

This proposition is being tested anew in a conflict involving a tire company, a girdle maker and a bright young chemical engineer.

The outcome could have broad implications for industry and workers.

At issue is the principle, rooted in English common law, that trade secrets a man learns on the job belong to whoever was paying him at the time.

Knowledge of ingredients and of ways of putting things together or working materials is not the property of the discoverer but belong to his employer, this principle has held.

The new legal action tries to find out exactly how this operates.

The tire company, B. F. Goodrich, is seeking to prevent a former employee, Donald Wohlgenuth, 30, from working in a certain operation of International Latex Corp., the firm that makes Playtex products.

Goodrich says it fears the loss of confidential information about space suits, the field in which Wohlgenuth had worked for Goodrich.

Goodrich said it is pressing the case "in view of the importance to American industry of the legal question involved."

The problem has mushroomed in recent years. Some $15 billion a year is spent on research. Products and processes depend upon complex and intricate information.

Corporations worry that ideas that cost millions might pass out the door into a competitor's plant in the person of a departing employee.

As a result, an increasing number of firms require technical people to sign an agreement not to reveal secrets to a future employer, usually for a stated period of time—six months to two years in most cases.

Adv for Pms Thurs March 21
The line where general information stops and specific, secret information begins is not always easy to draw, however.

The Goodrich case attracts interests for this reason, among others. It involves trying to spell out the secret area in advance, then prevent the newly hired employee from working in it.

This emphasis on restricting before there has been any actual disclosure makes the case something of a bellwether, some legal experts think.

Wohlgenuth, a graduate engineer from the University of Michigan, had been technical manager of space suit development engineering for Goodrich. The firm has been a leader in the field, providing the suits for astronauts in Project Mercury.

International Latex, based at Dover, Del., is a relative newcomer in the field with a new $15-million contract for Apollo moon flight outfits. It hired Wohlgenuth, topping his $10,600 a year salary at Goodrich with pay of $13,700.

Goodrich went to court and got an injunction stopping Wohlgenuth from doing any work for Latex.

"Until the hiring of Mr. Wohlgenuth," said Goodrich, "it had been the uniform practice of companies in the industry to train their own space suit scientists." Latex replied that Wohlgenuth had a right to advance his career, said Goodrich was underpaying him for the job he was doing and that Latex merely paid him average rates for his kind of skills.

Further, Latex said its space suit technology was different from—in fact, was farther advanced than—Goodrich's.

Common Pleas Court Judge Frank H. Harvey in Akron, Ohio, where Goodrich is based, ruled after a trial that "the mere fact that a former employee who possesses a trade secret has accepted employment from a rival manufacturer isn't sufficient to warrant an injunction against the employee" unless evil intent is shown.

Wohlgenuth, who lives with his wife and child in a new house he bought near the Dover plant, could return to work, the judge said. Goodrich appealed.

Sylvester To Get His Say Monday

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP)—Assistant Secretary of Defense Arthur Sylvester goes before investigating congressmen Monday to tell his side of the story on administration handling of information.

Sylvester's handling of Pentagon announcements during the Cuban bombers and missiles crisis, and his statement that the government has a right to lie in times of grave crisis, drew sharp criticism Tuesday as a panel of news industry leaders testified before a House subcommittee investigating government information policies.

The Pentagon information officer and his opposite number at the State Department, Assistant Secretary of State Robert Manning, are due before the Foreign Operations and Government Information subcommittee Monday for the second installment of the inquiry.

Subcommittee Chairman John E. Moss, D-Calif., wound up the first session by describing the newsmen's consensus this way:

"The government itself should now propose guidelines on policies for any future crisis."

Clark Mollenhoff of the Des Moines Register and Tribune told the subcommittee that Sylvester "stands as something of a symbol of the problem."

"I feel he has damaged his usefulness, joined other witnesses in complaining about a speech Sylvester gave in New York Dec. 6."

In it, Sylvester said it is the "government's right, if necessary, to lie to save itself when it's going up into a nuclear war."

Wild March Weather Lashes U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wild March weather lashed parts of the East today and rising flood waters drove hundreds from their homes in the Midwest and East.

Die-hard winter's latest outbreak—snow, flood triggering rains, tornadoes and damaging wind storms—was blamed for at least four deaths, three in Indiana and one in West Virginia.

A snowstorm that swept across areas from the Dakotas to Michigan, dumping a foot of snow in some sections, tapered off during the night as it moved into the Northeast. But freezing rain fell south of the snow area and thunderstorms broke out over Georgia and the eastern Carolinas. The Ohio River reached flood crests inches short of disaster levels in the Metropolis, Ill., area. The water advanced two blocks into the city and more than 300 residents in the area left their homes.

In north central West Virginia, 2 to 3 inches of rain brought a rapid rise in the West Fork, Shavers Fork, Monongahela and Cheat rivers. The body of a partly paralyzed farmer was found in his flooded basement at Buckhannon. He apparently fell into the water and drowned while trying to plug a sewer drain.

The Monongahela River flooded low-lying sections of several towns in southwestern Pennsylvania. Some families left their homes for higher ground. Communities hit by scattered flooding included Brownsville, Fayette City, Fredericktown, Charlestown and West Brownsville.

Fire Sweeps Building in Terre Haute

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., (AP)—Fire swept through the Terre Haute business district today, destroying 10 stores, injuring three firemen and causing an estimated several million dollars property damage.

Five buildings were destroyed and others were damaged in a seven-hour blaze whipped by 30 m.p.h. winds. Firemen controlled the fire at 8:32 a.m., but kept a four-block downtown area roped off.

U.S. 40 and other downtown streets were closed by piles of brick from fire-shattered walls.

Three firemen were injured as a brick wall collapsed. Their condition was not believed serious.

Chief Norman Fesler was treated in a hospital for lacerations and exhaustion but returned to direct the fight.

Two other firemen also were treated for cuts and smoke inhalation.

The fire started in a bowling alley in the basement of a four-story building that formerly housed the Deming Hotel.

Algiers Protests French Tests

ALGIERS (AP)—Premier Ahmed Ben Bella called today for renegotiation of the peace agreements with France and demanded an end to French atomic tests in the Sahara.

Ben Bella spoke before the Algerian National Assembly, called into special session following the French underground atomic test Monday.

The records, which gave Algeria independence, provided for a five-year lease by France on three Sahara bases.

Senators Are Bitter Over Criticism

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Karl E. Mundt said today the Senate Investigations Subcommittee is "pretty bitter" about the Pentagon's anonymous criticisms of its investigation of the "TP" warplane contract.

Terming the criticisms "bombing raids," Mundt said the legislators would demand that Defense Department officials name the spokesman.

The South Dakota Republican also told a newsman that the subcommittee's staff is checking whether anyone at the Pentagon had a self-interest in which way the potential $6.5 billion award went.

He said the self interest could be "state interest or personal financial interest."

Mundt said state interests could be investments in the Fort Worth, Tex., areas which might profit indirectly from award of the plane contract to General Dynamics Corp., of Fort Worth.

The subcommittee's investigation is aimed at learning whether favoritism influenced award of the contract to General Dynamics over a rival bid by the Boeing Co. of Seattle, Wash.

Mundt fed off on an anonymous statement released from the Pentagon over the weekend which charged that the Defense Department had been trapped by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., into an unfavorable position in the hearings.

The spokesman contended Jackson had indicated he wanted only a brief investigation to "Make him look like he" done his duty by his constituents" in his homestate, where Boeing is located.

Subcommittee Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said he would announce by Wednesday a decision on the department's request to allow McNamara to testify when the hearings resume Thursday.

As soon as either McNamara or Deputy Secretary of Defense Roswell Gilpatric gets on the witness stand, Mundt said, the subcommittee will demand they name the anonymous spokesman.

Christian Unity Urged by Ministers

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Two Protestant ministers and Catholic priest urged Christian unity when they spoke at a meeting of a Little Rock civic club Tuesday.

The ministers were Glenn Lyles, pastor of the 6th Street Church of Christ and the Rev. Colbert S. Cartwright, pastor of the Putnam Heights Christian Church.

The priest was the Rt. Rev. James E. O'Connell, Rector of St. John's Seminary.

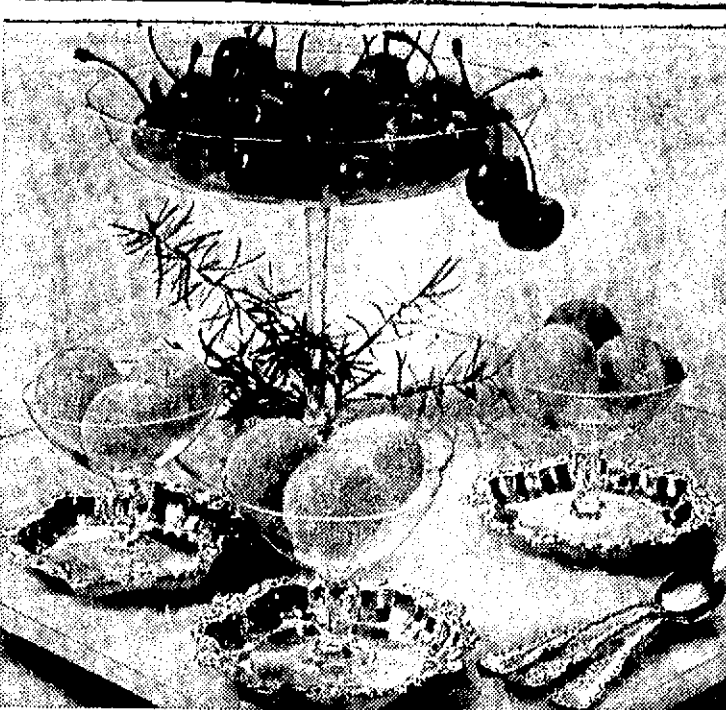

Cartwright is president of the Greater Little Rock Ministerial Association.

All three said the current ecumenical movement should be encouraged.

Lyles said that any movement uniting people is a movement in the direction of God.

Cartwright said it was a scandal that Christians were divided. He said the divisions are a denial of Christ.

Msgr. O'Connell said progress in unity is being made but that it will not result in a drastic change soon. He added however that it will lead to more harmony between religious groups.

Chapter XXVIII

Nancy's first impulse upon returning to her room was to sacrifice all caution and call David, to tell him that somebody knew. How Rhoda could possibly have known was no longer a vital matter. But she knew David was married, and to Nancy, or she would not have made this ridiculous visit. None of the nuances of their talk had escaped Nancy.

Rhoda had been bent not so much on confirmation as admission. Nancy was a little tired of being cautious. A dozen times a day she found herself at the point of revealing their secret. She was neither a gossip nor a chatterbox, but it was becoming increasingly impossible to keep the consciousness of her marriage buried in her mind.

She visioned the days and months ahead, all jumbled in a frantic concealment. Stopping up the dyke in one spot, only to have the sea break through in another.

Oh, David — David — David — her heart called, and the silent echo of his name in the cold corridors of her mind brought comfort, restored reason. After all, what could Rhoda do? Even if Rhoda had taken a fancy to David, she surely wouldn't seek out Miss Hanniman to report a secret marriage!

It was three days before Nancy and David felt it safe to meet on the pier. They no longer had to comfort of stray smiles and electric glances. They were too busy. The private room were filling up. The interns were talking about a vaccine for Asian flu, about the antibiotics which were being used, most of them successfully. Occasionally, a patient would not respond easily. These cases had been checked for pneumonia.

Dr. Cornish would permit no talk about the wide-spread attacks of this particular disease. "The less talk the less fear," he said to David.

"I have only a half-hour, Davey," she said, "but I have something to tell you."

He knew almost before she said it what her news was, and he tried to delay it.

"If it's bad news, Nancy..." A man close by began to cough, and as if that were a signal, the hacking sound was repeated in various dark corners. This was one of the difficulties in the wards — when one patient coughed, a sympathetic vibration seemed to ensnare every patient, and they all began.

"We can't meet on Thursday."

He withdrew his arms. The river nibbled at the pier, its dark length coiled around the hospital ship and the island like a phosphorescent serpent.

"Nancy, did you have to give up your liberty for the rest of the term?"

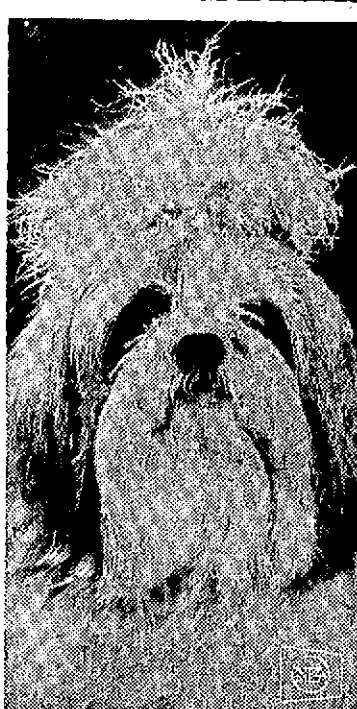

"No. I have to study for the exams, and we're having extra patients. I'm too tired at night classes in the care of pneumonia to study. If I take a nap after I go off duty on Thursday, I can put in a few stiff hours of cramming."

"How about the evening?"

"I can't. Oh, Davey, don't be angry with me." Her voice became suddenly low and hurried. "I have to go out with Tony Thorne in the evening. Please try to understand — please. I don't want to. But a girl just can't be married secretly and cut off the rest of her life without an explanation. If I could tell him the truth — I know we can't — but if we could, I wouldn't dream of going out with him. He'll take me to dinner and for a drive — that's all. He called me Thursday — I couldn't get out of it. If you had some old friends whom you had to see, you'd know what I mean."

"I trust you."

His conscience quite burdened with his last visit to Rhoda, which he had no intention of mentioning lest it worry Nancy, David believed himself in no position to object. He understood well enough, for if his meeting with Rhoda had not ended as it did, he too might have had to continue an unimportant friendship.

Tony Thorne had suggested that Nancy meet him in the restaurant where, according to the story he had told Miss Hanniman, they were supposed to have dined on the night she was absent from the hospital.

"Well," he laughed, when they were seated, "It's a long time since we've been here. What a night of heroism that was — deeds of derring-do, beautiful nurse to the rescue and all that. You're a better actress than I thought you were, Nancy."

"I really felt remorseful about her, Tony."

"You needn't. There's so little been put over on her through the years that it's really in the nature of a triumph. Unfortunately, the story has to be kept hidden by the conspirators."

"I'll never ask you to do anything like it again, Tony."

He parted his hands eloquently. "One never knows, Nancy darling. If girls will be — wild — The waiter came for their orders."

Judy Garland Performer of Many Moods

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Judy Garland is a performer of many moods. In her television special last season she was a mature, almost tragic and lonely figure on a big stage. Tuesday night, she was a youthful, gay and frolicsome figure—on a big stage.

But whatever Miss Garland's mood, she is always an exciting and stimulating performer. The electricity she generates and the emotion she expends make even the most trivial lyrics of a Tin Pan Alley number sound important and meaningful.

Her CBS hour Tuesday night had some mildly amusing comedy to keep Phil Silvers busy.

Robert Goulet shared some of the musical chores and looked adoring in a duet. But the interesting moments came when Judy Garland was alone in the spot light on a darkened stage singing her songs.

Her weekly shows next season are something pleasant to anticipate.

Well, the widowed heroine of "The New Loretta Young Show" married her publisher and prepared, in the last fade-out Monday night, to live happily ever after with her new husband and brood of seven.

The final episode ended with a notice, "The Very End." But Miss Young, in her short epilogue, said, "Goodbye—for awhile." The energetic Loretta, far from downhearted by the cancellation of the series, is already thinking about a dramatic anthology series of hour shows.

All Cubans Don't Support Castro

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—No more than 15 per cent of the Cuban population supports Premier Fidel Castro, a Cuban exile said here Monday.

Dr. J. E. Caignet, who fled his home in Santiago de Cuba and moved to the United States in 1961, said he obtained the information about the mood of the Cuban people from friends and relatives recently arrived in the U.S.

Caignet told a civic club that about 40 per cent of the Cubans backed Castro in 1961. Batista, the dictator who ruled Cuba before Castro, was bad, Caignet said, but Castro is worse.

The doctor is a native of Cuba who was educated in the U.S. He is a radiologist at the Veterans Administration Hospital here.

New Airport at West Memphis

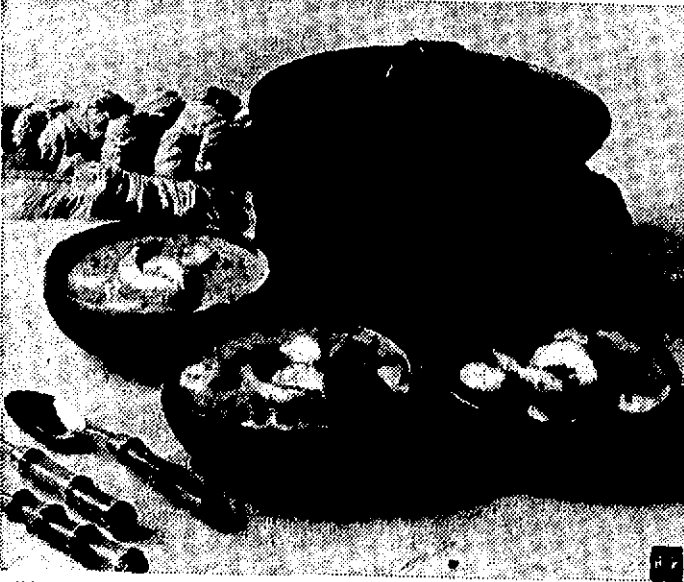

WEST MEMPHIS, Ark. (AP)—Final documents needed to begin construction of a federally financed airport here were signed by city officials Tuesday.

April 20 was set as tentative date for opening bids on the $530,000 project. Mayor Bob Eden said the city received final authorization from the Housing and Home Finance Agency approving a $269,000 long-term loan.

A grant agreement with the Federal Aviation Agency assuring the city another $269,000, was signed by City Atty. W. H. Dillahunty earlier Tuesday.

The airport will have a 100-foot-wide, 3,900-foot-long runway. Hangars and storage facilities will be included. Completion is planned by Oct. 1.

Shrimp Chowder For Main Course

Hearty soups and chowders should be served hot—so serve them in a tureen. This is especially true when they are meant to be the main course of a simple luncheon or supper. A good example of this is a shrimp chowder. It makes a fine main course soup especially for meatless-type meals, and is especially good when served extra hot. To make it, start with a package of dehydrated mushroom soup as the base. Then blend canned shrimp, milk and seasonings. This makes a thick chowder with a delightful "homemade" flavor. Try it by using this new recipe which was developed recently in the Borden Test Kitchen.

Shrimp Chowder

(Makes about 8 three-fourth cup servings)
1/4 cup butter
1/2 cup instant minced onions
5 tablespoons celery flakes
1 tablespoon sweet pepper flakes
1 (1 1/4-oz.) package Wyler's Mushroom Soup
3/4 cups cold water
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon pepper
3 cups (three 5-oz. cans) cleaned, cooked shrimp, finely chopped
2 cups homogenized milk

In large saucepan, melt butter and saute onions, celery flakes and pepper flakes for 5 minutes, or until onions turn brown. Stir in package contents of mushroom soup, water, salt and pepper. Bring to boiling point. Stir in shrimp and milk. Cook over low heat until hot. Serve immediately. If thinner soup is desired, stir in additional milk and heat until hot.

They Fight Time in Tennessee

By BOB HORTON

KNOXVILLE Tenn. (AP)—Rain beats monotonously against a house in northern Alabama, on a tobacco field in southern Kentucky and down a gully in Tennessee.

From the farmer to the salaried man to the independent operator in the sand-hauling business along the Tennessee River, the questions are about the same—

How much is it going to rain? When is it going to quit?

What is the Tennessee Valley Authority doing about it?

No one can answer the first two with certainty. That complicates the answer to the third, which involves hours of tedious paperwork, split-second figuring by man and computer, perhaps hurried messages by microwave radio during the night, and juggling of waters behind more than two dozen dams.

The TVA that swirled with political controversy in the '30s to-day in the face of floods can shut off completely the Tennessee River where it enters the Ohio River at Paducah, Ky.

One of its decision-makers is Alfred Cooper, chief of TVA's river control branch, who sums up his job? "We fight time."

If conditions call for it, white-haired, bespectacled Cooper twists the technical faucets that turn off the Tennessee.

The Tennessee was stopped dead in 1958, 1960 and 1961 to control flooding on the lower Ohio and down the Mississippi. TVA figures it has averted about $31.5 million damages along those areas by regulating the Tennessee's flow.

If Cooper has any simple formula for controlling a runaway river, it is this: Clear the mainstream of as much water as possible ahead of an expected flood crest, and hold back waters from the tributaries until the crest passes.

The hitch is deciding which of TVA's nine mainstream dams to open and which of its five major tributary dams to close, how much and for how long.

With a new flood crest coming down the Ohio, TVA Tuesday curtailed the Tennessee flow from 350,000 cubic feet per second—160 million gallons a minute—to 250,

Sees Progress in Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Winthrop Rockefeller said here Tuesday the progress of Arkansas should double in the next decade.

The head of the Arkansas Industrial development Commission told the Little Rock Optimist club "Arkansas has a tremendous future and we must keep ourselves informed, for it is only an informed population that enables us to work together."

Rockefeller's talk came as he marked his 10th year in the state. He emphasized his interest in youth and in obtaining for the state industries that would utilize more of the state's agricultural output.

Sayings From Poor Man's Philosopher

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—The poor man's philosopher:

Man has been going steadily downhill ever since he traded the sun dial for a wrist watch.

One of the most placid paths to a ripe old age is along the pavement of postponement.

It is better to remember or anticipate a joy or duty than to endure it. Life isn't an insurmountable mountain. It is a clutter of climbed molehills.

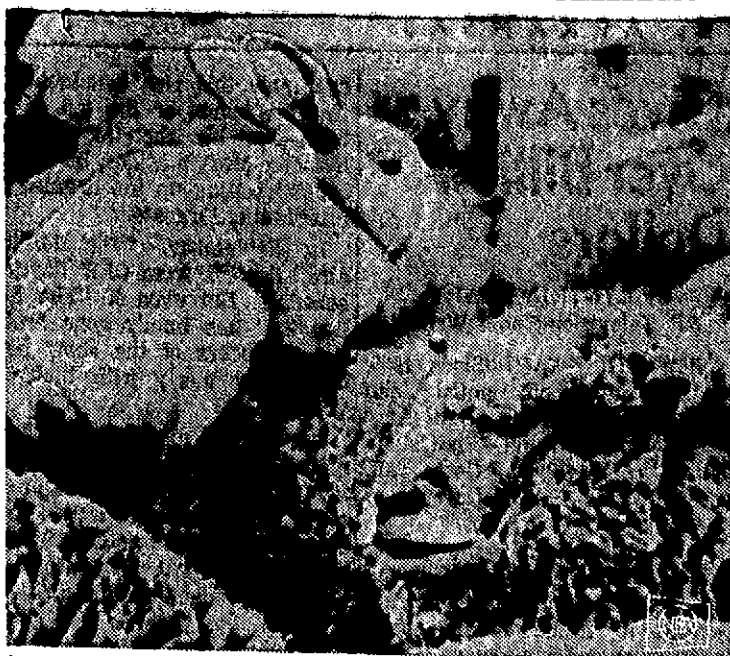

Some people make living a continual emergency, as if they were always on the way to a four-alarm fire. They always feel they have more to do than they can cope with, and their reward is the merit badge of the uneasy—an ulcer.

Existence becomes ablossoming glade rather than a bearpit if you learn the pleasant art of postponement. The best philosophy of survival is to live few uncrowded hours.

Give every demand upon your attention a 24-hour perspective. If a thing is worth doing at all, it can be best done in the vast tomorrow rather than the hurried 000 CFS. It may be cut to 200,000 CFS.

The idea is to slice the Tennessee flow to a minimum when the Ohio flood crest passes Paducah—about Wednesday—and then allow the Tennessee's pent-up waters to flow in behind.

today. One's greatest error is often made while performing the avoidable in doing the unnecessary.

Never attack a peril—and rarely a promise—unless you really have to. Often, if you look at them steadily, they will evaporate. They will go away and leave you undisturbed.

Toy your time with trifles. Then the vast unaccomplished future will loom as a finer treasure trove than your achieved past.

There is considerable pleasure in getting some things done, but there is also a large pleasure in enjoying the prospect of things undone. Everyone should have a larger list of things to be attempted than his catalog of things won.

For example, among my goals are the climbing of the Empire State Building and the reading of Leo Tolstoy's remarkable novel, "War and Peace."

I have met a number of people who have done these things separately, and they all brag about their victories.

But what I have in mind is to be the first man in history to do them at the same time—to go up the Empire State Building and through "War and Peace" step by page, page by step.

That is my secret scheme. But why rush into it? It is more fun to think about climbing the Empire State Building while reading "War and Peace" than it is actually to do it.

Living can be a real luxury once you take the urgency out of it.

Is a Restless Man of Just 13 Years

SOMERVILLE, Mass. (AP)—Everett Knowles is a restless 13-year-old.

"One thing I can't stand," he says, "is just standing still."

The red-haired youngster has kept moving, kept progressing further along the road toward full use of his once-severed right arm.

He reached another milestone Tuesday when the cast was removed from his arm.

And he can move all five fingers of his right hand.

He can move his wrist in one direction and has some feeling in his upper arm.

Massachusetts General Hospital, where the arm, completely severed by a train last May 23, was restored in an historic operation, issued a statement:

"Although it is still too early to make predictions about the ultimate extent of recovery there are some hopeful signs.

"Movement of all five fingers of the right hand indicates regeneration of the median nerve as far as the upper forearm muscles that control finger flexion.

"There is a suggestion that the ulnar nerve has grown to the same level."

The median and ulnar nerves are the two which control the principal functions of the arm.

18.4 Million Chicks Started

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Chick production by Arkansas hatcheries in February totaled 18,498,000, an increase of one per cent over February 1962, the Crop Reporting Service said today.

Egg-type chick production at 1,179,000 in February greatly exceeded the 452,000 egg-type chicks hatched in February 1962. Production of broiler-type chicks in February 1963 was down three per cent from a year earlier.

Lost Youth, 3, Is Safe and Sound

POTEAU, Okla. (AP)—Danny Thomas, 3, is safe at home today, somewhat like the 300 or more persons who roamed wooded and hilly country Monday and Tuesday searching for him.

The boy was found safe Tuesday, 24 hours after he and his 5-year-old sister wandered away from home.

Lawrence Graham, a volunteer who searched the area on horseback, found Danny only three miles from the family's farm home near Hogdens, Okla. his sister, Dinah, was found safe about 2 a.m.

Involved in the search were some 80 military policemen dispatched from Ft. Chaffee Tuesday. A Ft. Chaffee spokesman said the Potomac, Okla. sheriff's department asked for help after parties had searched for the boy through Monday night.

Hogdens is about 10 miles from the Arkansas line and is southwest of Fort Smith. An Army helicopter was sent from Ft. Chaffee to be used in the search.

The two youths live with their mother, Mrs. Addie Thomas, in a farm home reachable only over a dirt road. Their father, Gene, is in the Navy.

Common Mkt. Has the U.S. Worried

By CARL HARTMAN

BRUSSELS (AP)—Western Europe's Common Market fostered by Uncle Sam, has grown into a self-assertive teen-ager who has the old man worried.

The Common Market's system of customs duties threatens the market for American farm products in Western Europe. Its members, especially France, want to produce more of these products instead of buying them abroad.

In 1961 the United States shipped $1.8 billion worth of farm goods to the Common Market countries—France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg. Preliminary figures indicate the total was even higher in 1962.

Present plans of the Common Market authorities could up this by a third or more.

Sales of American cotton and tobacco are not much threatened. Common Market members produce little of these.

Sales of American poultry have been hard-hit and grain may be next on the list.

After World War II Americans were saying that Europe could get out of its vicious circle of poverty and war only if it broke down old trade barriers at national frontiers. Europeans, it was argued, should be brought into one big market so European businessmen could give the consumer mass-produced goods at low prices. It would be economical for European countries, with their smaller farm area and many tiny plots of ground, to concentrate on dairy and meat production. Grains could be bought much more cheaply abroad.

These ideas appealed to many Europeans, and the Common Market is now formed and moving toward unity in many ways. But when it comes to farming, things are not working out as the United States might have liked.

A series of variable levies can make any farm import sell a little higher—or, if desired, a whole lot higher—than the home-grown variety.

Last summer the new Common Market levies went into effect on chicken. Entrance fees for American poultry shot up 250 per cent, to 12.5 cents a pound. American exports dropped off.

West German housewives now pay about 44 cents a pound for chicken. The American product could be sold for 25 per cent less if it were not for the levies.

European consumers are being denied a bargain but the Common Market chicken farmers are cleaning up. American chicken farmers face the loss of $50 million of business a year.

Even more money is involved in U.S. exports of grain and grain products to the Common Market—$389 million in 1961. Here too the levies have begun to be felt. Eggs and pork are also affected.

The most recent figures of the U.S. Department of Agriculture show a 26 per cent decline in exports of these products to the Common Market in the four-at $2 or less.

Damage Suit Is Withdrawn

MORRILTON, Ark. (AP)—Gene Wirges, editor of the Morrilton Democrat, has withdrawn his suit for $150,000 in damages against Conway County Sheriff Marlin Hawkins.

Wirges, who had charged Hawkins in his suit with "officials meddling" and abuse of authority, filed a nonsuit Tuesday before Circuit Judge Wiley Bean when the case was called to trial, saying his principal attorney in the case, Thomas G. Elise of Little Rock, couldn't appear.

Wirges said he filed the nonsuit to allow him to bring the suit again.

Following filing of the nonsuit, Bean ordered Wirges sworn in and questioned the editor about articles printed in his newspaper.

Dangerous Drug Sales Are Allowed

WASHINGTON (AP)—A medical officer of the Food and Drug Administration said today the agency has permitted the sale of new drugs "imminently hazardous to the public health" by overruling expert medical opinion.

The testimony came from Dr. John O. Nestor, an expert in the FDA New Drug Division, at a Senate subcommittee hearing into safety procedures for drug marketing.

Sen. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, himself a medical doctor, told Nestor that if even part of his testimony is correct, "it is a shocking indictment of the Food and Drug Administration."

"Any doubt about a drug must be resolved in favor of the user, not the producer," Gruening declared.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., the subcommittee chairman, called Nestor's story "shocking and most distressing" and said FDA officials will be called on for explanations.

Nestor, a pediatrician whose job is to evaluate new drug applications, said medical opinions which challenged past FDA policies or commitments to the pharmaceutical industry, encountered "indifference, disapproval, or even hostility, frequently so when they dealt with drugs for pediatric use."

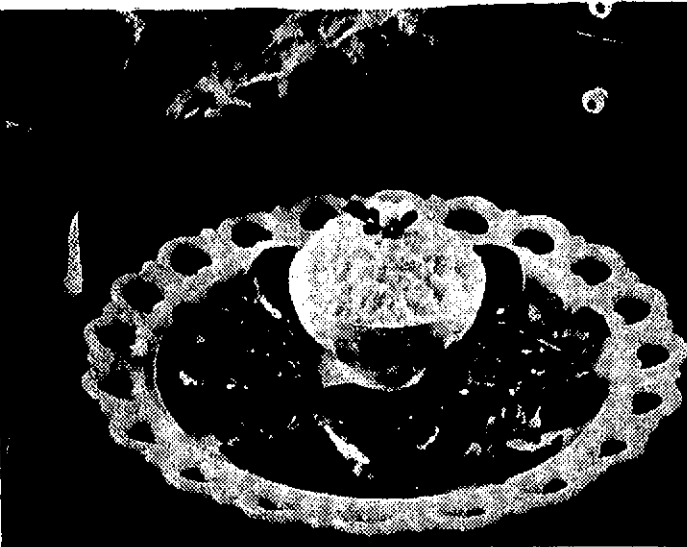

Pediatrics is the branch of medicine which is concerned especially with the care of children and treatment of their diseases.

month period after the levies went into effect. The decline is in comparison with the same four-month period in 1961.

The Common Market aims to set up uniform prices throughout the six countries for wheat and other grains. If the price is set high, farmers inside the Common Market will put even more land into grain, and produce so much that substantial imports won't be needed.

Right now the French government supports wheat prices at about $2.15 a bushel, and the West German government at about $3. American farmers often sell wheat

Beet Salad-Cream Cheese Dressing

Jellied and molded beet salad makes a tasty dish for luncheon or supper service. To make it, start with a one-pound jar of pickled beets and a package of lemon-flavored gelatin. Add seasonings. Chill and serve with a tangy cream cheese sour-cream dressing. Here is the simple recipe as developed in the Borden Test Kitchen.

Jellied Beet Salad
(Makes seven ½-cup servings)
2 cups (one 1-pound jar) Greenwood's Sliced Pickled Beets
1 (3-ounce) package lemon-flavored gelatin
1 cup boiling water
¼ cup finely chopped celery
1 teaspoon prepared horseradish
1 teaspoon vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
Salad greens
Creamed cottage cheese, optional*

Drain liquid well from beets; reserve liquid. In a large mixing bowl, dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add beet liquid. Cool. Chill in refrigerator until consistency of unbeaten egg white. Into a medium-size mixing bowl, cut beet slices in small pieces. Add celery, horseradish, vinegar and salt. Mix thoroughly. Fold into gelatin mixture. Pour into seven (5-ounce) custard cups or individual molds. Chill in refrigerator until firm. Unmold on salad greens.

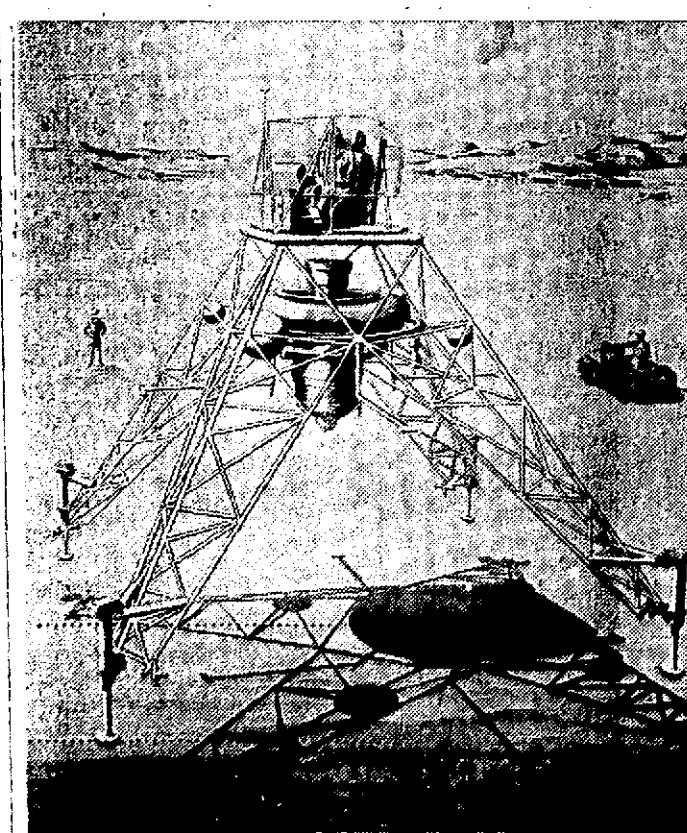

* Serve with cottage cheese or Cream Cheese-Sour Cream Dressing.

Cream Cheese-Sour Cream Dressing
1 (8-oz.) package cream cheese
Pasteurized, plain
½ cup sour cream
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper

Place cream cheese in a bowl and let soften at room temperature. Add sour cream, salt and pepper. Beat until dressing is of a smooth consistency. Serve over salad.

LUNAR LIFT—Long before they actually set foot on the moon, astronauts will perfect the necessary landing techniques right here on earth. Drawing above shows a lunar landing simulator to be built by Bell Aerosystems Co. for delivery to National Aeronautics and Space Administration in 1964. Suspended between the four aluminum tubing truss legs is a 4,200-pound-thrust turbojet which lifts the vehicle to the altitude where the practice landing can start. The jet engine is throttled to provide lift just equal to five-sixths of earth's gravity. The remaining one-sixth—equal to the gravity on the moon—is counteracted by two hydrogen peroxide rockets. In the actual moon ship, only these rockets would be necessary for a landing or take-off.

Coroner Rules Woman Drowned

Gives Away Over Billion Dollars

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Since 1955, a faceless tycoon named John Buresford Tipton has given away close to a billion and a half stage dollars on television. Come fall, however, this fictitious front of philanthropy will dry up.

"The Millionaire," the television dramatic series based on the gimmick of handing a different person a million-dollar check from an anonymous donor, bowed onto the CBS network. No one ever saw this rich benefactor—just his hands or the top of his head—but his secretary, played by actor Marvin Miller, busily ran around setting up the dramas by distributing largesse.

In September, "The Millionaire" departs from CBS' daytime schedule. But even if "The Millionaire" has finally gone broke, the producers of the show have done very nicely with their investment.

One of the most obvious facts of television life to the observant viewer has been the impact of the views of Newton N. Minow, Federal Communications Commission chairman, on television programming and content for the past two seasons.

Minow created a storm when he labelled television a "vast wasteland," and his strong criticism of violence, mayhem, sex, murder, and prolonged fights resulted in a notable diminution of all in network shows.

He called for "more and better children's programming—and all three networks responded. He has spoken in favor of more and better public affairs and information shows—and network emphasis has continued on their output in these largely unprofitable commercial areas.

The effect of Minow on television programming, however, is now official. It has been established by a survey ordered by an advertising agency.

A Union City, N.J., agency (Vennet) reports that a TV rating service (Trendex) queried 100 high-level programming executives—and received answers from 43 of them—on whether Minow's call for more balanced programming and diverse fare had influenced their thinking. Almost half of the 43 admitted it had. The other half insisted they were trying to improve quality before feeling FCC pressures.

Twenty-three per cent of those answering admitted softening their approach to violence but another 25 per cent said violence had no part in the format of their shows anyway.

To a question whether they felt Minow should be discussing programs at all, more than 80 per cent had no objection—the majority feeling that good, constructive criticism was beneficial. About 79 per cent of the 43 said they thought his ideas, in general, had merit.

Creamed Crab Meat Delight

The menu challenge is greater when meals are to be meatless. At moments like this, experienced cooks turn to recipes which are tasty and satisfying like this Creamed Crab Meat in Potato Nests. This new recipe, developed and tested by the Borden Kitchen, promises real eating pleasure.

Creamed Crab Meat in Potato Nests
(Makes 6 servings)

Potato Nests:
2 cups water
1 teaspoon salt
¾ teaspoon pepper
1 cup cold homogenized milk
1 (8 servings) package Instant Whipped Potato Flakes
2 tablespoons butter
2 eggs, beaten
¼ cup melted butter

In medium-size saucepan, combine water, salt and pepper. Cover and bring to boil. Remove from heat. Add milk, potato flakes and butter. Stir gently with fork or wire whip until flakes have absorbed liquid. Whip briskly. Add beaten eggs and whip until well blended. On a buttered baking sheet, divide potatoes into six even portions. With the back of a spoon, shape into nests that are four inches in diameter. Brush with melted butter. Bake in very hot oven (450 F.) 10 minutes, or until potatoes are golden brown. To serve, fill with Creamed Crab Meat.

Creamed Crab Meat:
¼ cup butter
1 tablespoon instant minced onions
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon Wyler's Parsley Flakes
2 cups homogenized milk
3 cups (two 8-oz. cans) cooked crab meat, flaked
¼ cup (one 4-oz. can) Brandywine Fancy Sliced Button Mushrooms, drained

In medium-size saucepan, melt butter and saute onions until golden brown. Blend in flour, salt, pepper and parsley flakes. Stir until smooth. Gradually blend in milk and cook over low heat until thickened, stirring constantly. Add crab meat and mushrooms. Blend thoroughly. Cook a minutes longer, or until thoroughly heated. Makes 4 cups. Fill each potato nest with ½ cup of the hot filling.
